MANY REMEMBER
FORTY YEARS AGOHYATT HOUSE BURNED TO THE GROUND ON THAT DATE.

DESCRIPTION OF THE FIRE

Reproduction of the Story of the Conflagration from the Gazette of That Date.

There are many residents of Janesville who will be interested in the following account of the burning of the Hyatt House forty years ago today. At the time of the fire John Tinney, who lives on Cornelia street, was a bellboy in the hotel and it was a sister of Mrs. Paul Laskowski of 156 North Hickory street, who was the only person to lose her life in the flames. The following is the account taken from the Gazette of January 12th, 1867:

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday,
 January 12, 1867.

TERRIBLE CONFLAGRATION!

The Hyatt House in Total Ruins!

A Young Woman Burned to Death!

HER REMAINS NOT RECOVERED!

Narrow Escape of the Occupants of the Building!

Loss of Property $150,000!

Our city was the scene this morning of the most disastrous fire that ever visited it. Soon after 3 o'clock the Hyatt House was discovered to be on fire in the kitchen. The flames spread with surprising rapidity, so much so that it was with the utmost difficulty that the occupants of the building escaped, nearly of them without saving their night clothes, and a young woman, named Maggie Emerson, an employee of the house,
 less fortunate than the others, was cut off from retreat and perished in the flames. She was last seen in a window in the fifth story where she called for help; but no help could reach her. Soon after the entreaty for assistance two garments were thrown out of a window, it was supposed by her.

Quite a number of the inmates of the hotel made their escape by crawling out on their hands and knees, while others nearly suffocated with smoke, threw themselves with frantic energy against the partition which separated the hotel from the building,
 occupied as offices, and tore it down,
 thus effecting their escape down the stairway farthest removed from the fire. One man let himself down to the balcony from an upper story by tying the bed clothing together. It is truly wonderful that no more lives were lost, when the extent of the building is considered, and the quick work which the flames made, is taken into account.

When Built.
 The Hyatt House was built in 1856
 and 1857 by A. Hyatt Smith, the citizens contributing liberally toward the enterprise. It cost not far from $130,- 000. The property was now owned by Mr. O. B. Matteson, and is believed to be insured for $15,000.

The Occupants.
 The hotel was kept by Sol Hutson, by whom it was furnished, save some $6,000 worth, which belonged to Mrs. A. H. Smith, and on which there was no insurance. Mr. Hutson had an insurance of $2,000 with Dimock & Lawrence on furniture and piano, and $25,000 with Whitaker on stock. John Hutson had an insurance of $500 with Dimock & Lawrence on furniture and wearing apparel. All the above insurance is a total loss.
 The loss of Mr. H. beyond all his insurance is estimated by him at something like $6,000.

 the stores for the sale of music,

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Costs Nothing To Try.
 Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier of nature,
 but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.
 Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the poisons and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.
 Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.
 Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the noxious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges;
 they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant, tasting, lozenges, the charcoal
 being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer
 blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary,
 great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I fully believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in many of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

chines, removed the most of his stock,
 but in a somewhat damaged condition.
 His loss he estimates at from $500 to $1,000. No insurance.

C. G. Campbell, flour and feed store,
 lost $2,000. Insured $1,000 with Hart.
 N. Griswold & Co., loss $2,000. Insurance $1,500 with Dimock & Lawrence.

V. Jounaneult, fancy goods and toys, lost $6,000. Insurance $2,000.
 The library and furniture of Mr. A.
 A. Jackson on the second floor was almost entirely saved, by the strenuous exertions of the citizens, to whom
 Mr. J. wishes to return thanks.

Williams & Sale were not so fortunate, for although the bulk of their library and fixtures were removed,
 they suffered damages to the extent of about $300.

The Baptist Society, which occupied Hyatt Hall for public worship, lost nearly all their furniture. The speaker's desk, communion service,
 and a few other things, however, were saved. Their loss cannot be far from $1,500.

Other parties in the building lost largely in wearing apparel and personal effects.

The small building west of the Hyatt
 House and occupied by T. M. Lynch as a market, was also burned. This was owned by Sol Hutson and insured with Whitaker for $400. Mr. L.
 had an insurance of $1,000 with Dimock & Lawrence on his stock, which was largely removed.

The stock of Wright and Hunt was insured for $10,000 with Dimock & Lawrence. Although the danger was im-ment, and the goods were removed and consequently received no little damage.

The express company saved everything and the internal revenue office
 lost all.

Incidents.
 Mr. Few, the partner of Mr. Hodson, who was boarding at the Hyatt House, put into his room, yesterday,
 a beautiful piano, and got his apartments in handsome shape. He had also a U. S. bond of $1,000. In all property valued at $4,000. He and his wife hurried out this morning with nothing but their night clothes on.

Mr. Hutson in endeavoring to bring out the babe of the head of a flight of stairs and fell the whole length, receiving some severe bruises,
 but doing no injury to the child.
 Mr. Wm. Monro, ascertaining that Mrs. Baker was still in her room and in danger of perishing, saturated his clothing with water and then ran in through the flame and smoke and brought her safely out.

The Fire Department.
 An immense amount of growling was perpetuated this morning against the fire department, it being alleged that they did not throw a drop of water upon the fire. The facts are these: The engines were got out and put in working order but the Chief of the department found it utterly impossible to induce men to take hold of the brakes. Knowing that the hose would freeze if unless a stream was kept constantly flowing through, he ordered the hose detached from the pump of Messrs. Hodson, McClesney, Morse and Hanson. That is the reason the engines did not work. We cannot understand why the citizens are so reluctant to man the engines in time of fire.

The Force Pump.
 A large debt of gratitude is due the owners of the force pump, for the efficient use made of it this morning. Its efficacy was so manifest that we hope that they will be provided with hose
 for emergencies.

Scene at the Fire.
 The scene at the fire was as grand a sight as is often witnessed. The air was still and the flames and smoke shot upward hundreds of feet in one vast sheet, bursting out of the windows and doors. And most fortunate it was that there was no air stirring for had it been otherwise, had the city must have been laid in ruins. As it was the freight depot of the Mil.
 & Prairie du Chien road took fire twice,
 and other buildings were also ignited.

Large pieces of tin from the roof of the hotel were carried by the draft two blocks off, all the buildings in the immediate vicinity were blistered and roasted by the heat, and the glass broken out. The Corn Exchange was repeatedly on fire, but by the untiring energy of Messrs. Casar and Murdock was kept from burning and thus the fire was prevented from spreading east on Milwaukee street.

Origin of the Fire.
 Nothing definite is known of the origin of the fire. Mr. Bauer, who first discovered it, stated to us that on coming down stairs he found the porter asleep. It started in the kitchen after the fire had been built in the cook stove.

We respectfully submit to our citizens and property owners, whether it is not high time to provide some more efficient and thorough means of extinguishing fires in this city. It is a matter that has already appealed to many purses, with a directness that cannot be evaded, and it was only because the elements favored us last night that more property did not fall a prey to the devouring element. The inadequacy of the fire department, neglected as it has been by the municipal authorities, has been sufficiently demonstrated. Our firemen do the best they can always, but there is a limit to human pluck and endurance,
 and a better method must be provided to save us from ruin. Let us have at least two good steam fire engines, properly manned and equipped, and the ring of the mid-night bell will not carry as much consternation to the hearts of our people as at present.

Search for the Missing Girl.—As soon as the rubbish is cool enough, search will be commenced for the body of the missing girl who perished
 in the fire this morning.

Baptist Services.—We are requested to give notice that the Baptist Congregation will occupy Lippin's Hall tomorrow morning and evening.

CAPTAIN OF MAINE
WILL BE RETIRED

Rear Admiral Charles B. Sigbee First
 of Naval Officers to Reach Age Limit in 1907.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—The first of the thirteen commissioned officers of the navy to be retired this year for age is Rear Admiral Charles B. Sigbee, who commanded the armored cruiser Maine when she was sunk in Havana harbor on the night of February 15, 1898. Admiral Sigbee will be removed from the active list next Wednesday, on which day he will reach the age of 62 years, the limit for active service in the navy.
 Admiral Sigbee has seen forty-five years of active service since he graduated from the Annapolis naval academy. He left the academy in time to participate in some of the memorable naval conflicts that marked the closing years of the civil war, including the battle of Mobile bay and the attacks on Fort Fisher. After the war he served on various duties and stations. He was with the coast survey for several years, during which time he sounded and explored the Gulf of Mexico and introduced numerous inventions and new methods in deep sea exploration. In recognition of his work along this line he received from Emperor William I. the decoration of the Red Eagle of Prussia. In 1897
 he had advanced to the rank of captain. In the spring of the following year the Maine disaster made him for the time being the most talked about officer in the navy. After the Spanish war Admiral Sigbee commanded the battleship Texas. In 1900 he was made chief officer of the naval intelligence bureau. Admiral Sigbee is a native of New York state, having been born at Albany, Jan. 16, 1845.

GREAT SECRECY
ABOUT REMOVAL
OF POPE'S BODY

It Is Believed Remains of Pope Leo XIII. Will Be Laid at Rest in Chosen Spot Next Week.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rome, Jan. 12.—Though the Vatican authorities have taken the greatest pains to prevent the matter being made public it is learned from a reliable source that the coming week will probably witness the transfer of the body of Pope Leo XIII. from the Church of St. Peter, in which it has lain over three years in its final resting place in the Church of St. John Lateran. As nearly all the cardinals now in Rome were created by the late Pope, it is probable that all of them
 will take part in the ceremonies, which will be held at night and be strictly private. Just why such extraordinary precautions should be taken by the church it is difficult to understand. At the present day there is no possibility that the disorders which attended the removal of the body of Pope Pius IX. to its last resting place could be repeated. It is known that the Italian government offered to co-operate with the Vatican by lig-ing the entire route with soldiers and police.

Meanwhile everything has been placed in readiness at the Church of St. John Lateran to receive the remains. The final resting place was chosen by the late Pope himself. Shortly before he died he had taken with him
 Cardinal Satolli his desire to be buried in the historic church. The spot he designated is on the left of the apse above the entrance to the sacristy, corresponding to the opposite niche in which is the monument erected in 1891 to Pope Innocent III.

A magnificent monument to mark
 the site has been completed by Tadolini, the famous sculptor. The artist has reproduced not only the features of the late Pontiff, but also his characteristic expression. Leo XVIII.
 is represented standing. His hand is outstretched in an attitude of benediction. At his feet there are two figures, on the right a woman representing religion and on the left a man who is at once a toiler and a pilgrim. In all respects save the monument the tomb is to be a counterpart of that of Innocent III., consisting of a sarcophagus with a bas relief, two niches, two statues, and two medallions.

No chance for disappointment if you serve Mrs. Austin's Pancakes. All grocers sell it.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Clearing and decidedly colder with cold wave tonight, 'Sunday' fair and colder.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

The following news item from New Albany, Indiana, went the rounds of the press last night:

"After superintending the manufacture of his own coffin from walnut lumber that he kept for 40 years, dividing among his neighbors $900 in cash, and paying his attending physician, John Wilson, a farmer in Harrison county, passed away and was buried yesterday in the Catholic cemetery at Buena Vista, near his home. Mr. Wilson, who was 63 years of age and a bachelor, lived alone on a farm. A week ago he became ill and concluded that he was going to die. He sent for Millard Thompson, the village carpenter, whom he instructed to make his coffin from a quantity of walnut lumber from a tree grown on his farm, which he had been saving for forty years.

"The coffin was made at the house, under his supervision, and was carefully examined by the sick man when completed. He paid the carpenter for his work and settled with his attending physician, saying that he was going to die and would be useless for him to come again. Then, sending for 30 or 40 neighbors, he divided among them $900, all that remained of his savings, in sums ranging from $10 to $50, according to the needs of the beneficiaries, after which he peacefully awaited the end, which came two days later."

It is a striking example of the power of thought and the influence of suggestion. The old man made up his mind that he was going to die on scheduled time, and to make sure that the program would be carried out without a break, superintended the making of his own coffin.

Had he been twenty-five years younger, and possessed of the same morbid disposition, results would have been the same.

While it is true that death is sometimes courted in vain by people who through suffering, long for relief, it is also true that fear and a vivid imagination have much to do with shortening the period of existence.

The mind is more often diseased than the body, and much more difficult to treat; diseases of this class are not easily diagnosed, and they frequently baffle the skill of the most expert physician.

Dr. Gordon, of the Northern hospital, has devoted many years to the study and treatment of diseased minds, and he has discovered that the imagination is a prominent factor.

Many of his patients are wakeful and restless at bedtime. Some of them are possessed of the notion that a "night cap" is the one thing necessary to induce sleep, and so at nine o'clock, in the drug room may be seen a couple of attendants, preparing dozens of wine glasses of a harmless mixture to distribute through the wards. The imagination is satisfied, and the disordered mind yields to the demand for rest.

The stomach is supposed to be the seat of indigestion, and it is made the receptacle for all sorts of noxious remedies, when it frequently happens that back of the disease is an overtaxed brain, or a mind so thoroughly disturbed by worry and anxiety, that the nervous system is a wreck.

Old people, whose mental faculties have failed, are never troubled with indigestion. They live on, well up toward the century mark, without thought or worry, eating anything and everything, with digestive organs as sound as a hothouse.

Some years ago an old man of this class had the misfortune to fall and fracture two or three ribs. The physician who waited on him left him in bed with a bandage around his body, and said that he must be kept quiet for two weeks.

The next day he was up around the house, as lively as ever, and ready for three or four square meals a day. His broken ribs gave him no more trouble than his mind, and he lived on for months in usual health.

In talking with a physician about a case of nerves and indigestion, he said, "The principal trouble with this man is that he knows too much about disease. He has made a study of symptoms until he has reached the point where he diagnoses his own case every day, and if there is anything under the heavens, in the way of disease that he isn't trying to cultivate, I have yet to discover it."

That tells the story of a lot of people whose minds are poisoned with symptom blanks, and who devote more time to the study of disease, than to breathing God's fresh air, and absorbing His bright sunshine.

They are more or less of a comfort to the medical profession, for the cause of disease is frequently difficult to locate, and when a man is treated for what he thinks ails him, he is usually satisfied.

Relief generally follows, in this class of cases, not through the remedies prescribed, but through confidence inspired by the physician. The presence of a strong, alert mind, in a vigorous body, dispels the nightmare of foreboding, and success follows the treatment.

Druggless healing is practiced to greater or less extent by all schools of medicine. An old Chicago physician shocked his associates, some time ago, by declaring that pneumonia could not be cured by medicine. While the statement was not questioned, to any great extent, the wisdom of making it, was very seriously discussed.

The argument was used that anything which weakened confidence, and destroyed hope, was certain to produce serious results. A direct recognition of the fact that the mind is the master spirit, and that its influence in checking disease, is of the greatest importance.

There are thousands of intelligent people today who subscribe to the Christian Science faith. They practice their belief to the extent of discarding drugs and medical treatment, and the fact that the most of them live out allotted time, in the enjoyment of health, is a strong argument in favor of recognizing the mind as a potent factor, in the treatment of disease.

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." is a truism which dates back to a time when the race was young, and the inspired writer, who recorded it, possessed knowledge of human nature.

Chance and time have wrought many changes, but men and women have been very much alike in all ages, and the human mind today is essentially the same as when the Creator first pronounced His work good.

There has been less change, in the physical organism. Men and women, of every generation, have been compelled to toil for daily bread, and they have been equal to the task.

The race has perpetuated itself, without let or hindrance, and its progeny turned loose to repeat the experiment without regard to consequences. While degeneration and inherited disease frequently develops, as the result, the controlling power, which has to do with the mysteries, called the mind and heart, is still in control.

Men are endowed with the power to think and act, and responsibility is measured by the degree of intelligence and environment. Right thinking means right living, and right living contributes very largely to health and happiness.

Some people are dead before they stop navigating, and others hasten their demise by building coffins long before they are needed.

The best way to live is one day at a time, free from worry and anxiety. The man who lives right, is ready for any emergency, and has no occasion to anticipate trouble.

PRESS COMMENT.

Yes—the Press Agent.
 Milwaukee Sentinel: And now a stage hand has assaulted Caruso with a monkey wrench. A fellow of infinite jest, anyhow.

Wheeler Wilcox Still on Deck.
 El Paso Herald: Some one complains of the scarcity of American poets. What is the matter with E.H., who is working two eight hour shifts a day?

Protected—But Lookout!
 Bryan's Commoner: The pure food law is now in force, but it would be well to continue to avoid the bulged cans and the highly colored extracts.

Not Meaning Hill, of Course?
 Chicago Record-Herald: One of the dramatists threatens to write a play around the fuel famine in the Northwest. It is a safe guess that the villain will have a beard and be bald-headed.

What Whitehead Will Be.
 Beloit Free Press: In the make-up of the state senate committees Senator Whitehead will be chairman on the new Capitol committee, and member of the Judiciary and Rules committees.

Even She Must Lose Pass.
 Exchange: Even the heroine who by waving her red petticoat saved the fast express from destruction has had to give up her pass. Thus do the sins of the unjust fall upon the just.

Enter Into Eden—The Serpent!
 Exchange: Now a lot of bright, but misguided men will devote their entire energies to inventing ways and means for re-naturing denatured alcohol sufficiently for internal use.

A Tip—That's All.

Chicago News: One way for the senate not to make a hit would be to hold up the nomination of Cortelyou. Strange as it may seem, the country likes cabinet officers who know their business.

Expecting a Mantle to Descend?

Geo. Grassie in the Evening Wisconsin: When W. D. Connor took the oath, yesterday noon, he stretched his right hand up as if reaching for something. Ambitious man, that Connor. Wonder what he's after.

Aldermanic Salaries in Racine.

Sheboygan Journal: Racine's new city charter provides for a board of eleven aldermen, who get $200 a year salary, each. As a fine of $2 is provided for failure to attend each city council meeting the balance of trade probably will be about even.

John Bull Worries Needlessly.

Milwaukee Sentinel: England is worrying over the question which side to take in case of war between the United States and Japan. She is to be congratulated if she has no more probable and pressing contingency to worry about.

Busy Days For Jim Hill.

Exchange: Jim Hill may not have time to appear before the interstate commerce commission, as he is busy doing everything he can to relieve the coal shortage short of getting out and personally pushing box cars into the suffering region.

"After Us the Deluge!" Plan

Sheboygan Journal: According to dispatches from Madison the state taxes were remitted this year when they were needed to run the government. This news is something like that regarding municipal ownership plants, that pay large profits as long as nothing is set aside for keeping up the machinery.

Saloon-keepers, Beware!

Exchange: The decision of the supreme court that common councils must revoke retail liquor licenses when a provision of the license is violated is one that is likely to receive the very careful consideration of those holding such licenses. The decision is mandatory.

Dignity No Mouse-trap.

Chicago News: Contrary to the usual custom, a member of the kaiser's cabinet has taken the stump for the government's colonial policy. Dignity is a nice thing to have when one is sitting around the house wearing one's Christmas slippers, but for catching votes it is not much of a mouse-trap.

Rah For the Old Ben Davis.

Chicago Tribune: The Missouri legislature has shown a proposition to remove the two bears from the state's coat of arms and substitute two mules. Still, Missouri might do worse. One of these days some horny handed representative will rise in his place and move that a B—n D—s apple be substituted for the bears, and the motion will go through with a whoop.

"Kid Frats."

New York Tribune: One of the "kid frats"—as the "Greek letter fraternities" of the public schools are gracefully dubbed—protests against threatened dissolution and will carry its case for existence, if necessary, to the supreme court of the United States. Why not to The Hague congress? Surely there is no issue in the world of greater moment to the welfare of mankind than the inalienable right of a knickerbockered schoolboy to ride goats and give grips and glyphs.

Carter Harrison Again Wants it.
 Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The action of former Mayor Carter Harrison, in launching his mayoralty boom, just when Mayor Dunne is in the thickest of his troubles, adds much to the gaiety of the campaign in that city. Mayor Dunne has encountered a number of perplexing problems, during his administration, and has been unable to make good on his various promises. Harrison is an adroit politician and will seek to turn these disappointments to his own advantage in the campaign, which he is about to open.

BEGGAR LEFT BIG STEAL TO CHARITY

Fortune of $50,000 Taken, at Death of Owner Was Never Used by Robber.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Budapest, Jan. 12.—Some strange details have come to light in regard to Dr. Gerlach, a beggar character of Budapest who, upon his death recently, was found to have left a fortune of $50,000. The man, it appears, was a university graduate, and for many years held a responsible position in the house of Baron Balkaczy, a Hungarian nobleman. The latter died, and his large fortune went to distant relatives. It was discovered that some $50,000 in money and valuables were missing, but no one suspected the faithful Gerlach. The latter pretended to be wholly destitute, and frequently applied for assistance from the heirs he had robbed. It was some years before the mystery was cleared up by a bank employee, who accidentally discovered that the owner of a large deposit account and Dr. Gerlach were one and the same person. Shortly before he died in a hospital, Gerlach confessed that he had originally intended to enjoy the fruits of his robbery quietly after the period of limitation had expired, but since then he had taken a liking to the life of a medicant and tramp that he had been leading, and resolved to leave the money to charity.

An architect from Madison was here this past week and will submit plans for the lower floor of the new building, to be erected, within a few days and other plans are already in their hands. Definite action will not probably be taken at the coming meeting next week.

N.-W. YARDMASTERS' WAGES ARE SLICED

Cut in Some Instances Was $25 Per Month—Many Resigning to Become Switchmen.

Nearly every yardmaster on the Chicago & North-Western road has received notice that his wages have been cut. The reduction came as a great surprise in view of the fact that the majority of yardmasters of the country are raising the pay of all classes of employees and even the North-Western has granted an increase to some. In some instances the cut has amounted to $25 per month and many under the new scale will receive less than switchmen and even regular brakemen. Both day and night yardmasters at Baraboo are reported to have given up their positions and it is rumored that the local night yardmaster will return to the ranks of the switchmen.

FACTORY SALE OF LEWIS UNDERWEAR

Enormous Purchase of Fine Underwear by The Ziegler Clothing Co.

The public is apprised oftentimes of some extraordinary purchase of merchandise and the subsequent offering of bargains by the merchant, but it has remained for the T. J. Ziegler Clothing Co. to surpass all events in the bargain offering line in this or any other city in southern Wisconsin. This purchase and outline of the stupendous purchase are these: the Lewis Knitting Co., the largest manufacturers of fine underwear in the country, desired to clean out their entire sample lines and offered them to the Ziegler Co. at such a reduction that the whole lot was purchased. On top of this the Lewis company went through their factory and gathered together all the odd lots of underwear, the accumulation of a season's run and offered these to the Ziegler Co. at such ridiculously low prices that the deal was closed at once and the entire stock is ready for public purchase. Every garment is new, fresh, and as clean stock as can be purchased at any time. An idea of the immensity of this purchase may be formed from the fact that over 500 garments are offered. The Lewis sample line consists of union and two-piece suits of medium and winter weights. The Lewis factory clean-up line is made up of one or two suits of a kind union and two-piece suits, odd shirts, odd drawers, medium and heavy weights. To give a description of the entire lot is quite impossible. Prices will be less than half and in many instances less than one-third to one-fourth regular figures. Garments which were $2 to $6, the regular Lewis retail prices, go at $1 to $2.50; for instance, for $1 you can buy a regular $2.50 garment. This time of the year most men find their undergarments sadly out of repair and an odd shirt or drawer of the proper weight would fit them out nicely. These wants can be filled from this mammoth showing, in fact any size or weight desired in two-piece or union suits is here. To give additional interest to this sale we will include our splendid assortment of Lewis spring garments from regular stock, so that the man who is fully supplied with winter weights can take advantage of the bargain. Included are: wools, siltrines, lisses, and cotton underwear. A big reduction will also be made in our large winter stock of Lewis goods, which consists of wools, lisses, siltrines, silk mixtures, balbrigan and cottons, in all the different weights, light, medium and heavy. This lot is fresh and new, just as good as you could purchase at the top of the season. Still another line of Lewis sweaters go into this sale. They are a clean-up lot from the factory, second to none on the market; heavy weight worsted deep turtle neck with wide cold, several colors for selection, at half regular value.

Bradley Knitting Co., of Delavan, make the finest knit coats, etc. in the country. Our entire stock of these goods go into this sale and consists of one-piece auto coats, golf coats, children's fancy sweaters, boys' V sweater vests, one-piece hunting coats, full fashioned, hand-knit and hand-fitted garments; all of our Bradley sweaters, white, blue, crimson, scarlet, tans, grays, are included in this big sale. We can furnish the Bradley Knitting Co. garments in any style required and are prepared to take measurements and have made to your own order any style or color of these goods.

To have you realize the full extent of this sale we tell you that any store in the large city do not show a stock larger than this combined offering. Any man who does not fill his underwear requirements for seasons to come from this sale is not a good financier.

A Husky Yarn From Carmi.
Exchange: When Alonzo Johnson of Carmi, Ill., got on to the "water wagon" on New Year's day. He did so with the declaration "I will stop drinking. If I ever take another drink may I be stricken dumb." And after a few days, as many others have done, Alonzo fell off the "wagon," by going to a saloon and taking a drink. Then when he sought to engage the bartender in conversation he discovered that his vocal organs were run down and would not respond to his thought, and ever since he has been compelled to do his "talking" with pencil and paper or slate.

TILLMAN MADE BITTER SPEECH

What would calculate to provoke the negroes to crime more than those words?

"The well known attitude of the administration on the social question has been the cause of a great and notable change in the demeanor and action of the negroes throughout the south and the greater question of relationship between the races cannot be much longer kept down."

After repeating in the near future a negro conflict to determine whether the race is the equal of the Caucasian, Mr. Tillman continued: "Broadly stated, the white people of the United States are face to face with the vital issue as to whether the Caucasian race shall share its inheritance with the other races of the earth. In Cuba the question presses for solution and immediate action. Shall that island be governed by negroes or white men? Shall it be doomed to the fate of San Domingo or shall it be saved for the white man? The question of a protectorate or annexation and of the future status of the people there must be determined in the near future. That is only one phase of the question."

"On the Pacific coast the relationship between the Mongolians and the Caucasians is involved. The President announces himself as favoring the policy of absolute obliteration of the race line, the granting of full citizenship to the Japanese. The Americans of the Pacific coast, as I understand it, are bitterly opposed to this policy and without regard to party lines. These Americans ought to know what is for their best interest and they ought to and undoubtedly will have the sympathy and aid of their fellow citizens north and south in protecting their interests. But these two phases of the race problem sink into insignificance alongside of the greater and more vital question of the relationship of the races in the southern states of the union."

"In six southern states (South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana) in the aggregate the negroes outnumber the whites and in two of them (South Carolina and Mississippi) the negro preponderance is very heavy."

"Under the law these people possess every right that white men have as far as the federal constitution confers rights and the 15th amendment expressly forbids the enactment of any law which shall discriminate in voting on account of race or color. Large numbers of these negroes are disfranchised at this time, but these laws are only temporary and work no cure and in the near future enough negroes will be able to vote to make inevitable the struggle for mastery between the races. In Cuba the color line has been obliterated and the negroes are in full blast. At the north the same conditions exist and the large number of mulattoes and quadroons with white blood in their veins who have migrated there are the leaders of the doctrine of absolute social equality encouraged as they have been and are now by the President of the United States. Take this from his message to the Congress: 'It is of the utmost importance to all our people that we shall deal with each man on his merits as a man and not deal with him merely as a member of a given race; that we shall judge each man by his conduct and not his color.'"

And again: 'Every far-sighted friend of the colored race in its efforts to strive onward and upward, should teach first, as the most important lesson, alike to the white man and the black, the duty of treating the individual man strictly on his worth as he shows it.'"

"Consider the full import and meaning of these words and then consider whether or not they are sincere and honest or whether in the fervor of a fight to justify an unwarranted usurpation of power and exercise of executive authority the President forgot himself and said more than he intended or means. To illustrate, it is possible or desirable that all consideration of race and color shall be dismissed from our minds and not govern our action; that racial instincts implanted in us by nature are to be ignored and all men of all races to be judged and treated on the basis of individual merit. Are men to be made over and the caste feeling and race antagonisms of centuries to disappear in the universal brotherhood of man? Are there any senators in this audience who subscribe to this doctrine who would have the Caucasian highest and noblest of the five races as is attested by history, descend to the level of the others and share his birthright with them with the inevitable result that pure white blood will disappear from the face of the earth and after the mixing of centuries shall have completed the amalgamation, have all men of one skin and one type?"

"Is President Roosevelt ready to act up to his own theory and have his children marry men and women of the other races? Would he accept as a daughter-in-law a Chinese or a Malay or an Indian or a Negro in accord with the doctrine laid down in his message which I have quoted? We all know he would not and while fine words he would not parsimoniously words like these are a source of incalculable evil, coming from such a high source."

"The southern white men and women who have for forty years resisted in every possible way his doctrine of the equality of the races, are just as resolved now as they have always been not to submit to it or its results. They are resolved to maintain control of their state governments and to prevent in every way possible social and political equality with the inevitable destruction of their civilization which would follow if they yielded. The conditions are growing more and more aggravated every day. Race antagonism increases in intensity. Are things to drift until direful tragedies multiply on every hand and blood shall flow like water? Is the statesmanship of our time inadequate to cope with this question but forty years after its termination we had conditions more threatening in some of their aspects than I witness in 1857. It is not possible for me to believe that the north who are responsible for the conditions existing, will be allowed to pursue their policy of absolute recognition of race equality much further. The question is not a local one or a sectional one except so far as the negroes are nearly all at the south, while at the north there are comparatively few of them. It is high time something was being done to have this great and vital question brought before the country in some practical and sensible way. The deep interest shown in the Brownsville tragedy is ample evidence that the people of the country are beginning to feel a deep concern in the various phases of this question and it is absolutely useless for doctrinaires and politicians to undertake to pool pool the question and dismiss it with a wave of the hand and for one I am ready to go to battle under the slogan: 'America for Americans and this is a white man's country and white men must govern it.'"

CHAPTER XII.

BRADLEY would have proclaimed his happiness through a speaking trumpet, but Gus begged that the engagement be kept secret for awhile. "Please let me feel a little surer of myself first," she pleaded, and Bradley agreed, as he would have agreed to climb Bunker Hill monument on the outside if she had asked him to.

The tug arrived the next forenoon, and the hull of the Ruth Gunn was towed up into Orham harbor. There she was anchored, where the getting out of the rest of her cargo would be a comparatively easy task.

They worked with might and main and, at the end of a month, the job was done. The last joist was laid upon the wharf. Obed Nickerson expressed himself as surprised and highly pleased.

Their share of the cargo's value amounted to $2,000, and, all expenses deducted, the profit to the partners was over $2,000.

"Not so mean, for two greenhorns in a floatin' soup ladle," crowed the captain. "Brad, how's the Jeremiah's these days? Ain't anybody said 'I told you so' yet, have they?"

The underwriters' agent was their friend now, and, inside of another fortnight, he had put a job in their way that brought them in $400 more. She was a coasting schooner that had grounded off the Point, and her skipper had contemplated telegraphing to the salvage company, but, thanks to Obed's recommendation, the chance was given—for a much lower price, of course—to the Lizzie's owners. The vessel laid easy, with only her bows on the sand, and the anchors and cables got her clear in three days.

Then they went anchor dragging again and met with considerable success. All this was profitable, as well as good advertising, and the Lizzie's owners were doing well. But they were ambitious and yearned for the day when they might undertake bigger things. Captain Titcomb was for ordering a new and larger wrecking schooner immediately.

But Bradley, more conservative, counseled waiting a little longer. "No use saddling ourselves with a big debt to start with," he said. "Dead horse is the meanest animal to pay for that I know of."

But, although the captain agreed to wait a little longer before ordering the new vessel, he announced that he was going to keep his eyes open, and perhaps he'd strike a bargain some day or other.

One evening a little later Bradley and the old maids were in the sitting room. Miss Prissy was much better and had, for the first time, donned a wrapper and come downstairs to sit in the big rocker. Miss Tempy was reading aloud to her, and Clara was in the kitchen washing the supper dishes.

"The earl bent his proud head," read Miss Tempy, "and gazed into the clear blue eyes that met his own. 'Claire,' he murmured in a deep, rich tone that vibrated through the heavy air of the gloomy cavern; 'Claire, my beautiful, my own, poor and humble your station on earth may have been, but henceforth, if we escape from the lurid flames of yonder volcano and the cruel blades of the merciless buccanniers, you shall no longer be the peasant maid, but my bride, my wife, mistress of Castle Craggyknoll, the peerless!'"

"What's that?" she exclaimed, breaking off suddenly.

"What's what?" asked her sister drowsily.

"Seems to me I heard somebody in the kitchen."

"Clara is there, isn't she?" queried Bradley.

"Yes, but I thought—yes, there's somebody else. I do believe it's a man! You don't s'pose she got a beau? I'm goin' to see."

And, before the others could remonstrate, she put "the Comforter" on the table and started for the kitchen. They heard her cross the dining room and open the door. Then came an exclamation.

"Why, why?" she cried; and then, "Well, I do declare!"

"What do you s'pose 'tis?" asked Miss Prissy, now thoroughly awake.

The kitchen door had swung to, but there was a great clatter of voices behind it. Miss Tempy was exclaiming and arguing; Clara Hopkins, who was visiting the old maids during the absence of her folks from town, apparently, was saying very little, and a third person, in a deep-bass rumble, was explaining something or other.

"Land of goodness," cried Miss Prissy. "I hope it ain't the minister, and me in this old wrapper!"

The kitchen door was opened, Miss Tempy appeared beaming, and there followed her into the sitting room no less a personage than Captain Ezra Titcomb. The captain's face was the least bit redder than usual, but he was otherwise as suave and unmoved as if the time of his previous call had been but yesterday instead of four years before.

"Well, Prissy," he said, shaking hands with the invalid, "how are you tonight? Most ready to come on deck and take command? No, don't get up. Evenin', Brad."

Poor Miss Prissy! She patted her tumbled hair into the most presentable shape possible, hurriedly pulled the red and white knitted "afghan" over the wrapper and marched to gasp that she was glad to see the captain. Then she sat still and stared reproachfully at Miss Tempy.

But that lady was too excited to notice her sister's agitation. She uttered about the visitor like a lion with one chicken, trying to hang up his hat, dropping it, blushing violently as she collided with him in the attempt to pick it up and generally behaving, as Miss Prissy said afterward, like a born gump.

"Set right down, cap'n," she pleaded. "We're real glad to see you. What made you come to the kitchen door? I couldn't think who 'twas, could you, Prissy? Oh, my sakes!"

In her nervous haste she had pushed forward the big armchair that had once been the throne of Captain Darius, but which, owing to the infirmities of age, had for some time been kept in the corner for show purposes only. It had a weak leg, and when Captain Titcomb planted himself on the worn black oiled-cushion the infirm member promptly bent inward, and the captain slid gracefully to the floor.

"Tempy!" exclaimed Miss Prissy in a freezing tone. Bradley laughed and ran to assist the fallen one. Miss Tempy, now in a perfectly helpless state, wrung her hands and stuttered.

"The idea of givin' him father's chair!" cried Miss Prissy. "Tempy, have you gone loony? I hope you ain't hurt, Cap'n Ezra. We never use that chair now. It used to belong to father."

Miss Tempy was heard to remark, feebly, that it looked "so like him." She declared afterward that she didn't say it.

The captain made light of the accident and selected another seat, carefully testing it beforehand. He at once began to talk about the weather and Miss Prissy's illness. But the older sister interrupted him as soon as the opportunity offered.

"What made you come to the back door?" she asked.

"There wasn't an instant's hesitancy in the captain's reply:

"Oh," he said lightly, "it's rained a little, and I thought I wouldn't muss up them floors of yours. I know them floors of old," he added, and laughed heartily. He continued to talk about the floors and seemed to think his fear of soiling them a great joke. Miss Tempy, who was a trifle more rational by this time, laughed with him, but Miss Prissy seemed still curious.

"You used to come to the dinin' room door, even when it snowed," she said.

"Yes, but I had on my sea boots this time, and they're so big I tote half the road along with me. Reminds me," he added hastily, just in time to cut off another question, "of what the old man—my dad, I mean—said about a colored cook he had aboard his ship once. Dad said that darky's feet was the largest live things without lungs that he ever saw out of water."

Bradley thought he had never seen his partner so willing, even anxious, to monopolize the entire conversation as he was that evening. He cracked jokes and spun yarns without stopping to rest. Clara came in, after a little, and seated herself quietly on the sofa. She, too, seemed a trifle nervous, but the sisters did not notice it. They were hypnotized by their caller's lively tongue and laughed like girls. Miss Prissy grew more like herself every minute.

"Don't go, cap'n," she pleaded, as the visitor pulled out his watch and rose from the chair. "I declare, you're better'n the doctor!"

"Much obliged, Prissy, but 'twas too much of a good thing that busted the elder jug. Two opposition doctors in one house would be like the two Irishmen fightin' for the pig—'twas an 'elegant row' while it lasted, but it killed the pig. No, I must be gittin' on. I left my umbrella out in the kitchen. Clara, bring the lamp, will you, please?"

"Now, my brethren, if you are satisfied with the security, down with the dust." He then sat down, while the ushers took the collection. It was unusually large.—The Sunday Magazine.

Clara rose and started for the kitchen, but Miss Tempy intercepted her. "I'll get your umbrella, cap'n," she said.

"No, no, you set still! Clara knows just where 'tis; she put it away."

"Well, I guess I can find it. You needn't guess, Clara. Yes, here 'tis. Good night, Cap'n Titcomb. I—I hope, now you've found the way, you'll call again some evenin'." Bradley 'll be glad to see you, and so will Prissy and—and I. Good night."

The captain walked briskly down to the gate. Then, as the door closed behind him, he paused, wiped his forehead with his coat sleeve and drew a long breath.

There was jubilation in the old maids' room that night.

On Tuesday of the following week this telegram came:

Boston, Mass.
Bradley Nickerson, Orham, Mass.
Come my office immediately.

ALPHEUS COOK.

"Humph!" grunted Captain Titcomb. "Short and crisp, like the old woman's pie crust, ain't it? Well, Brad, I guess you'd better go."

Bradley agreed with him and hurried home to pack his grip. He took care to tell Gus. She rejoiced with him over the triumph they both felt sure was coming.

"You're succeeding, Brad," she said. "Everybody is talking about it. I'm prouder of you than ever."

"But when will you be willing to have me tell people that we're engaged? Mayn't I do that now, Gus?"

She paused, and his hopes rose, but then she shook her head. "It wouldn't be fair to you," she said. "Sometimes I feel that I almost—well, like you enough to be content to stay in Orham all my life and work for you and with you. I'm trying hard to feel that way. But at other times it seems as if I must get away to where the people talk of something besides their neighbors' affairs; where there are great things being done and where the world moves. You think I'm inconsistent, don't you?"

"No, it is dull down here, and most of the folks are rather narrow. I'm afraid. Gus, you know what my business means to me. Well, if it will please you and you will come with me, I'll give it all up, even now, and go back to the city and try it there."

She smiled tenderly. "You're a dear, good boy," she said, "but do you suppose I should ever be happy again if I let you do that?"

The railway journey to Boston had only one incident worth notice. At Buzzard's Bay the Boston train meets that bound down the cape. There was some delay at the station, and Bradley stepped out on the platform. He was walking up and down smoking when somebody shouted: "Hello, Brid Nickerson! What are you doing here?"

Brad turned and saw Sam Hammond.

"Well," he exclaimed, shaking hands with his old seat mate. "Where are you bound—Orham?"

"Yup. How is the old graveyard anyway?"

"Pretty quiet just now. Most of the summer folks have gone home. You on another vacation?"

Sam laughed. "Kind of vacation a fellow hands out to himself," he answered. "The wrecking company and I had a row. They tried to put ten men's work on me, and I wouldn't stand for it. So I told 'em to go to the devil. It put 'em in a hole all right, but nobody's going to walk on my neck if I know it. I'm going home to loaf for awhile. I need a rest anyway. Then I'll go back to New York and hook on with another crowd. There's plenty of 'em want me, but they can wait. How's all the girls? Gus Baker pretty well?"

They talked for a few minutes longer. Sam asked how the anchor drugging trust was getting on. Then the two trains started. Bradley leaned back in his seat in the smoker and meditated. Somehow a conversation with Sam always made him "blue." He wished the fellow was not going to Orham.

Next morning, bright and early, he walked into the "coal king's" office. An important young man with a pen behind his ear disclaimed to notice him.

"Who'd you wish to see?" he asked after a dignified interval.

"Mr. Cook—the older one," answered Bradley.

"He's busy now. Likely to be busy all the morning. What do you want to see him for? Won't I do?"

"Don't know, I'm sure," replied the wrecker gravely. "I'll speak to Mr. Cook about it. You see, he was the one that sent me, so—"

"He sent for you! Oh, excuse me. I wish you'd said so sooner. Sit down, please. What name, sir?"

"Nickerson, sir."

The young man, much less important, hurried into another room and returned at once.

"Mr. Cook 'll see you, sir," he said, opening the gate. "Step right into his private office, Mr. Nickerson."

The great Mr. Cook was seated behind his big carved desk. The whole outfit looked rather formidable. He stared at Bradley over his glasses.

Some Great Canals.

The Erie canal is the longest canal in the United States, having a length of 287 miles. It was completed in 1826, and cost $52,540,000. The Ohio canal is 217 miles long, and cost $4,695,204. The longest foreign ship canal is the Suez, between the Mediterranean and Red seas, which is 90 miles in length, and cost $100,000,000.—The Sunday Magazine.

The Shortest Sermon.

One of the shortest sermons on record is the one which Dean Swift preached before a charitable society. After announcing his text, "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord," the preacher simply said: "Now, my brethren, if you are satisfied with the security, down with the dust." He then sat down, while the ushers took the collection. It was unusually large.—The Sunday Magazine.

TOO WARM FOR BUSINESS

TRADE FEELS THE NEED OF SEASONABLE WEATHER.

Freight Blockades Relieved, Says Dun's Review—Higher Prices in Leading Commodity Exchanges.

New York, Jan. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review says:

Trade returns are irregular because of the erratic weather, unseasonably high temperature restricting sales of heavy-weight wearing apparel at some points, while business is most satisfactory in colder sections. Freight blockades were relieved to some extent, but there is still much complaint of tardy deliveries. Mercantile collections are also more prompt in some sections than others, but there is unanimity regarding the large amount of forward business on the books of manufacturing plants and general confidence in the future.

Building operations have been greatly facilitated at the east by open weather, maintaining activity in markets for materials beyond the customary date. Prices of all commodities declined almost one per cent. during December.

Higher prices have prevailed at the leading commodity exchanges. In wheat there was a natural reaction from the preceding decline, as the short account took profits, and the recovery was carried still further in response to reports from winter wheat states that a sharp fall in temperature threatened much damage from frost because of insufficient snow covering.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for January amounted to $2,268,450, of which $1,511,844 were in manufacturing, $1,469,319 in trading, and $287,287 in other commercial lines.

ARRESTED AS BANK WRECKER.

Fred Gilman, Wanted at Goodland, Ind., Caught in Bloomington.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 12.—Fred Gilman, a former banker of Goodland, Ind., was arrested here Friday. Gilman is wanted at Goodland, where 13 judgments await him. The bank failed two years ago and Gilman is charged with receiving deposits knowing the institution to be insolvent.

Goodland, Ind., Jan. 12.—News of the arrest of Fred Gilman, former head of the Home bank of this place, which closed its doors two years ago owing to deposits of $240,000, reached here Friday night.

Gilman several years ago was a bank clerk at this place, but resigned his position and went to Charleston, W. Va., where he remained a year or more. He then returned to Goodland and it is alleged gave out the impression that he had acquired great wealth. He organized the Home bank and by paying large rates of interest soon built up an extensive business. When the bank failed Gilman left for parts unknown, and his arrest at Bloomington is the first knowledge of his whereabouts.

Settlement of the bank's affairs have been exceedingly slow. Two dividends totaling about 13 per cent. have been paid and it is said another dividend of three per cent is soon to be made, to wind up the assets of the bank.

REPLY TO DENEEN BY CHIEF OF I. C.

HARAHAN SAYS GOVERNOR'S
CHARGES ARE UNJUST.

DIVISION OF EARNINGS

Executive Orders Suit Instituted Next Week, Saying His Argument
Will Develop Through
the Courts.

Chicago Jan. 12.—President J. T. Harahan of the Illinois Central railroad issued a statement Friday in reply to Gov. Deneen's special message on the state's claims against the road. The governor arrived in the city late in the evening and declined to go into details in answering back again. The matter has been turned over by the governor to the attorney general and suit will be instituted next week for the funds which the state's officers find are due from the road. Thus the governor's argument will develop through the courts.

Gov. Deneen, however, called attention to one point in the Harahan statement which he wished to dispute. It was that the road's reports had been "accepted" by the state. The governor said the reports had been "received" but not "accepted," and in proof of this cited the fact that for months he had had under way an investigation of the matter.

Harahan's Answer to Charges.
Mr. Harahan, in his statement, says in part:

"The chief controversy between the governor and the company relates to the method of dividing revenue arising from business carried over both the original chartered lines and other lines of the company, and his message, no doubt, makes the strongest possible showing of his contention. He has, however, selected extreme illustrations and omits the equalizing conditions."

"It is claimed by the state accountants, whose views the governor has adopted, that the Cairo bridge charge should be eliminated, notwithstanding the Ohio river is a recognized barrier in traffic divisions, and for all railroad bridges across it a definite charge is made, even though the bridge is leased to the railroad company carrying the traffic. The governor's proposal violates the recognized practice. Besides, this bridge is wholly within the state of Kentucky, and the toll is charged under a franchise granted by that state, and is less than the charter authorizes."

Explains Division of Earnings.
"Again, he urges that the earnings from joint traffic should be divided between the chartered and nonchartered lines on a mileage basis, notwithstanding that, in many instances—notably between certain points north and south of Cairo—it would result in giving to the chartered line more than its local rate for carrying the traffic. As an example, the rate from Chicago to Jackson, Tenn., is $1.03 per hundred. If that through rate is divided on a mileage basis it will give the chartered line 79.6 cents per hundred as its part, though the local rate from Chicago to Cairo is only 46.6 cents."

"Another demand made by the auditing company employed to examine our books is that the minimum recognized in dealings with other companies should not apply to divisions between our main and branch lines in Illinois."

"Most of our so-called branch lines were originally operated by independent companies, and this company has allowed certain preferences to its branches in the division of joint revenue, in so doing following the universal practice among railroads. The plan proposed by the governor would starve the branch lines out of existence."

Says Accounts Were Rendered.
"In reference to his statement that no true account has been rendered I will say that since the origin of the company semi-annual reports have been made setting forth for each month the amount and sources of revenue on which the state received its seven per cent. At no time has the company concealed any of its operations. Our books have been open for inspection at all times, and we have afforded the present governor's representatives every facility for doing their work."

"The form of report published with the governor's message has been in use for the last 24 years. Gov. Deneen himself received such reports without objection until the last one filed, and I cannot believe the governor seriously intends to criticize the company for using a form of report so recommended and incised."

"Of course, it is natural that in a matter so complicated that there should be differences of opinion, but it is not now and never has been the purpose of this company to avoid full payment of the state's share of its revenue."

CIVIC FEDERATION IN PALMER PALACE

Captains of Industry and Leaders of Labor Gathered in Home of Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Captains of industry and leaders of organized labor will cross their feet under the mahogany tonight in the palatial drawing-rooms of the Potter Palmer residence on Lake Shore Drive. The occasion will be a joint conference under the auspices of the National Civic Federation. At the annual meeting where, and so the gathering was arranged, in deference to the wishes of the federation in New York last month Mrs. Palmer offered the use of her residence for the next meeting. August Belmont, president of the federation, accepted the invitation on condition that Mrs. Palmer should act as hostess and temporary chairman of the gathering. Then the question arose as to whether the social side of the affair might not obscure itself so forcibly as to "scare" some of the labor representatives away. But the labor leaders who were sounded in the matter said they saw no reason why the subject of wages and hours of labor could not be discussed and

Revenue Cutter Launched
Wilmington, Del., Jan. 12.—Christened by a daughter of the state in whose honor she was named the new revenue cutter Pimlico was successfully launched today at the yards of the Pusey and Jones Shipbuilding company. The sponsor for the vessel was Miss Appie Caffo of Nerberne, N. C., who broke the traditional bottle of wine across the vessel's bow as she left the ways for the initial plunge. A large crowd witnessed the launching.
